

DeAnna Mach, owner of Mach's Brick Oven Bakery & Wood Fired Pizza is also a member of The Vermont Fresh Network, working together to inform the dining public of the wholesomeness, nutritional value, freshness and safety of Vermont grown foods, as well as the economic impact of supporting local businesses. They share a philosophy of preserving their rural identity and lifestyle in VT, keeping VT farms working and our green spaces open!

Mach's Brick Oven Bakery uses natural and organic ingredients whenever possible. Organically grown means that the product has been grown in a practical partnership with nature, without the use of synthetic pesticides and fertilizers. Organic growers build fertile soils through the use of cover crops, natural fertilizers and compost. They use crop rotations, cultivation and biological controls to keep pest populations in balance. Organic growers avoid synthetic chemicals because they contaminate and compromise the health of the living ecosystem on which sustainable agriculture depends. Organically processed means that the food has been minimally processed to protect, to the greatest degree possible, the natural integrity, nutrition and flavor of the food.

After all, you are what you eat!
